ELL PRESENTATION

Ms. Jill McCarthy, ELL Program Director, K-12 updated the committee on the how her staff has continued to work the last three years to achieve and maintain the program compliance across the district. Ms. McCarthy noted with the diversity in languages in Arlington comes different cultures, which also creates opportunities for our community. Ms. McCarthy stressed that regular education teachers are continuing to be trained to support ELL students, and has been done with on-site enrichment classes for middle and high school teachers taught by Jill and Charlie Skidmore. This was designed to help school teachers learn how to adapt to their instruction so they can work successfully with the English language learners. With assessment and trained teachers, this process can help to identify students who might need longer support in the ELL program rather than special education services, as previously thought.

The committee members were in agreement to keep the ELL program as one of its goals for next school year. As Ms. McCarthy noted the communication between ELL families and the district needs to improve. Mr. Curro mentioned the many resources, such as the world language network; and within our own community we should be able to find the support needed to improve communication on a volunteer basis.

CHAIR REPORT

Ms. Burns asked the committee members to hold the date of June 26, 2008 for the Town Financial Summit. The entire School Committee, Board of Selectmen and the Finance Committee will be meeting to look forward in the budget planning process.

RESEARCH AND FINDINGS OF THE STUDY GROUP FOR GIFTED AND TALENTED EDUCATION

Ms. Wallis Raemer, Dallin School principal and ACE Director presented on Meeting the Needs of Gifted Students in Arlington. Other study group members included Jill Connor, Sheri Donovan, Siobhan Foley, Annette Brubaker, Andrea Campbell, Mies Boet Whitaker, Amy Duke, Henry Olds, Mary Brooks, Judi Bohn and Kathy Bodie. Ms. Raemer addressed the committee with the research and the findings of the study group. They found that they would like to offer the gifted students enrichment activities during and after school, support the social and emotional needs of gifted students, offer pilot math groups in elementary schools that are cost neutral, explore early identification, compare with other schools on how they include enrichment programs and how they are implemented. They would also like the 2008-2009 school year to include a plan on professional development on gifted and talented education and to apply for a DOE grant that could fund this program.

The committee members were asking how students are identified and how do we satisfy the needs for all the students with our financial challenges. Ms. Raemer noted some examples to identify gifted and talented students are common assessments as well as other testing. The common assessments show students with above grade levels in reading, writing, science and math. These 4th and 5th grade students would enter into the multi intelligent curriculum unit best suited for them. With the support of administration and the committee, the study groups are continuing to be creative in strategies to continue support gifted and talented students. The presentation of Meeting the Needs of Gifted Students in Arlington is posted to our website.
